DETAILED ACTION

1. This Supplemental Action replaces the NonFinal Rejection mailed 10 March 2004, which is hereby withdrawn.
2. Claims 1-24 have been examined in this case

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

3. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

4. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.
5. The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of: (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.
6. For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.
7. In the present case, independent claims 1 and 11 only recite an abstract idea. The recited steps of merely receiving pet death care products, services and information comprising: receiving pet death care products, services and information from a supplier of pet death care products, services and information, or of making such products available to a preferred provider; and as a preferred provider, dispensing the pet death care products, services and information to pet owners do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since all of the recited steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper, or by a person on foot, for example. These steps only constitute an idea of receiving pet death care products and information. No technological arts are recited in the instant claims or any other claim in this application. As to technological arts recited in the specification, mere recitation in the specification (i.e., intended or field of use) or mere implication of employing a machine or computer or computer network to perform some or all of the recited steps does not confer statutory subject matter to an otherwise abstract idea unless there is positive recitation in the claim as a whole to breathe life and meaning into the specification. In the present case, none of the recited steps are directed to anything in the technological arts as explained above with the exception of the recitation in the specification that the method involves the use of the "World Wide Web".

8. Further, the dependent (2-10 and 12-24) claims merely give examples of "preferred providers" such as veterinarians or pet shops. Looking at the claims as a whole, nothing claim 1 or 12 any other claim in this application recites any structure or functionality to suggest that a computer or computer network performs the recited steps. Therefore, the specification is taken to merely recite a field of use.

9. Additionally, for a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result. In the present case, the claimed invention produces the distribution of products and services for pet owners (i.e., useful and tangible).

10. Although the recited process produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result, since the claimed invention, as a whole, is not within the technological arts as explained above, claims 1-24 are deemed to be directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

11. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

12. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ginter et al (US 6,389,40281).

13. Ginter discloses systems and methods for the dissemination of information as well as secure transactions management and electronic rights protection over the Internet. (E.g. col 1 ln 45 - col 3 ln 50). Although not disclosed in the claimed, the specification in this case discloses the dissemination of information as well as the sale of products and services over a network such as the Internet.

Art Unit: 3621

14. Ginter does not expressly disclose a method of disseminating information and selling products for pet death care. However, these differences are found only in the nonfunctional data. Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see Cf. In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401,404 (Fed.Cir.1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579,32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed.Cir.1994).

15. Examiner's note: Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers in the references as applied to the claims above for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may be applied as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the responses, to fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.
